profiles in service

"In teaching about community organizing, I like to draw upon my experiences as a volunteer with Durham Congregations, Associations and Neighborhoods (CAN), an Industrial Areas Foundation affiliate. As a member of the Health Care Action Team, I have been able to offer Durham CAN perspective about our community's uninsured residents and the health care system. However, when I volunteer with Durham CAN, I am not an "expert" but a member of a grassroots, multi-racial, multi-faith coalition that seeks to improve the quality of life in Durham. In addition to being involved in my community, this experience richly informs my teaching."

Mat Despard, Clinical Assistant Professor

profiles in service

"I was recently elected president of The Adam Foundation, Inc., a nonprofit organization that raises money in the Piedmont Triad area and distributes those funds to local agencies that provide HIV/AIDS direct client services, education, and prevention. Engaging in meaningful community service provides a valuable opportunity for me to apply and enhance the skills and knowledge I teach to the students in the Winston-Salem Distance Education MSW Program."

profiles in service

"I was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1998. Since then, I've volunteered with the National Multiple Sclerosis Society locally and now nationally as a member of the board of directors. This has had a profound impact on my ability to impart knowledge and skills to my students about sensitivity, acceptance, inclusion, and advocacy for people with disabilities. My volunteer experience enables me to illustrate the value of client and family direct services to students, and reinforces the importance of the social work perspective in an organization's vision, planning, fundraising, advocacy and evaluation of effectiveness."
