CHALLENGE YOURSELF TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE
Inspiring faculty, high-impact field placements, collaborative projects — at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Social Work (SSW), you have all the resources to thrive academically as you prepare for a social work career in direct or macro practice. Ranked by U.S. News & World Report as a top school of social work, our School enrolls nearly 300 MSW students annually and our program is accredited by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE).

At SSW, you’ll learn from educational leaders who are among the best in their fields — including tenured and tenure-track faculty, clinical faculty, research faculty and an outstanding group of distinguished professors.

You’ll be matched with field experiences in a wide range of state, national and international agencies where you’ll explore career paths and interests, develop professional skills and receive guidance from supportive mentors. You’ll be well prepared for North Carolina’s licensing exam in clinical social work (LCSW) — SSW graduates have achieved extremely high pass rates.

You’ll develop a solid foundation of knowledge that will serve you well in any state or nation. Although each student’s path is unique, SSW introduces students to some of the most pressing social issues of our time, including child welfare, developmental disabilities, aging, family and youth violence, mental health, military family support, poverty and asset development, behavioral health and more. Some SSW students collaborate with other UNC students in medicine, public health, physical therapy, dentistry, pharmacy and nursing to serve the local community through SHAC (Student Health Action Coalition), the oldest student-run interdisciplinary free health clinic in the United States.

Concentration Choices

Direct Practice Concentration

The Direct Practice (DP) Concentration prepares MSW students to work directly with individuals, families, and small groups as well as with people of all ages. The Direct Practice Concentration draws on several theoretical perspectives and practice methods and uses both family-centered and ecological perspectives to explore the influence of the social context on the well-being of individuals and families. This concentration emphasizes the impact of diverse factors on individuals and families, including factors such as age, disability, economic status, gender, national origin and immigration status, poverty, race, religion, and sexual orientation.

The primary goal of the Direct Practice Concentration is to prepare social work students for careers as practitioners who can effectively provide direct services to individuals and their families across the life span.

Community Management and Policy Practice Concentration

The Community Management and Policy Practice (CMPP) Concentration prepares MSW students for leadership careers in community practice, human services administration, and policy practice/advocacy. The goals of the CMPP concentration include preparing students as leaders who will promote positive social change in the lives of vulnerable populations and as leaders who will guide efforts toward improving the quality of life for individuals, families, and communities. The CMPP Concentration helps students acquire knowledge and develop skills in promoting citizen participation and building stronger social networks and communities; developing supportive programs and responsive human services organizations to meet identified needs; and influencing change in policies within legislative, agency, and community settings by analyzing existing polices, establishing new policies, and working toward continuous improvement of policy implementation.

The CMPP Concentration uses a strengths-based approach in working with groups, organizations, coalitions, and communities. This concentration emphasizes the role of a community’s or organization’s assets in social development, community organizing and planning practice, non-profit leadership, coalition building, social administration, public advocacy, and community-based research and program evaluation.
Dual Degree Programs at the School of Social Work

UNC School of Social Work collaborates with other Schools to provide opportunities for completion of dual degrees upon graduation. Students enrolled in dual degree programs typically complete one or two summers of coursework and/or their concentration field practicum. Students interested in participating in the dual degree programs must apply to and be accepted for admission to each School’s program independently. Admission to one program does not guarantee admission to the other program. Students may apply to both programs concurrently.

Advanced Standing students are able to participate in the dual degree program with Duke Divinity School; however, due to the Advanced Standing plan of study, they are not able to complete any other program as a dual degree student.

Social Work and Divinity
The Dual Degree Program in Social Work and Divinity is offered in conjunction with the Duke University Divinity School. The mission of this program is to prepare students for service roles in churches, public service agencies, faith-based agencies, and a variety of human service agencies. This mission is accomplished by equipping students with clinical and administrative skills grounded in social work and pastoral skills and perspectives grounded in theology. This enables students to integrate theological, biblical, theoretical (bio-psychosocial-spiritual and person-in-environment framework), ethical, pastoral, social justice, empirical perspectives, and practical dimensions of social work. Students typically begin the dual degree program at Duke Divinity School, completing two years of study before enrolling in the MSW program, although it is possible for students to begin the dual degree program at the School of Social Work.

Social Work and Law
The Dual Degree Program in Social Work and Law is offered in conjunction with the UNC School of Law. This program prepares students for leadership and direct practice roles in advocacy, policy, management, and social justice in a specialized area of human services practice. Participants gain knowledge and expertise in social work and in the legal system, dispute resolution, and legal analysis and advocacy. Graduates are prepared to pursue a variety of careers in the public or private sector — working on a direct services or policy level — in positions involving non-profit organizations, community development and housing, alternative dispute resolution, and social justice issues (e.g., child welfare, domestic violence, aging, or civil rights). Graduates are conferred the Master of Social Work (MSW) and Juris Doctor (JD) degrees upon completion. Students usually begin in the School of Law, complete two years of law school, and then begin courses in the School of Social Work.

Social Work and Public Administration
The Dual Degree Program in Social Work and Public Administration is offered in conjunction with the UNC School of Government and prepares students for public service leadership roles in human services. The combined program ensures that students have two complementary but distinct areas of professional competence, thus preparing graduates for public service leadership roles in human services. Graduates are conferred the Master of Social Work (MSW) and Master of Public Administration (MPA) degrees. The joint program includes a paid summer practicum (summer of second year). The MSW curriculum ensures dual MSW/MPA candidates develop mastery of generalist social work knowledge, values, and skills as well as expertise in their chosen area of concentration. The MPA curriculum ensures candidates develop mastery of core public management knowledge. Students typically begin their first year in the MSW program and then complete their studies in the MPA program in their second and third year.

Social Work and Public Health
The Dual Degree Program in Social Work and Public Health is offered through a cooperative arrangement with the Gillings School of Global Public Health. This combined program focuses on macro practice and prepares social work students for program planning, management, evaluation, policy development, and advocacy in public health. Students are required to complete the Community, Management and Policy Practice concentration in the MSW program. Several concentrations are available to students within the MPH program including Health Behavior, Health Equity, Health Policy, Global Health, Leadership in Practice, and Maternal, Child and Family Health. Graduates are conferred the Master of Social Work (MSW) and a Master of Public Health (MPH). Students typically begin their first year in the MSW program and then complete their studies in the MPH program in their second and third year. Students work with advisors in the Gillings School of Global Public Health and the School of Social Work’s Field Office to plan their second-year summer field practicum in public health social work.
Graduate Certificate, Licensure, and Specialized Training Programs

Graduate Certificate in Innovation for the Public Good

The Carolina Graduate Certificate in Innovation for the Public Good (CIPG) gives masters and doctoral students an educational pathway to explore modern change making and practice the skills they need to help create meaningful change in the world. CIPG provides students with the mindset, tools, and methods they need to work effectively across disciplines to solve complex problems. CIPG also equips them with career-ready skills that they can use when working on multi-disciplinary teams in businesses, nonprofits, and government agencies that increasingly demand the ability to apply cross-sector, community-engaged practices.

State Licensure for School Social Workers

UNC School of Social Work offers graduate-level students the opportunity to meet the requirements set forth by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction (DPI) for school social work licensure. The goals of the School Social Work program are to prepare master’s level social workers to help children and their families overcome barriers to learning through interventions delivered in the home, school, and community; encourage communities to develop and maintain effective school social work services; and promote legislation and policies that support school social work practice. This program also extends to newly-hired, graduate-level professionals through a licensure-only process to complete requirements during the initial year provisional status.

Substance Use and Addictions Specialist Program (SUAS)

UNC School of Social Work offers a program in Substance Use and Addictions that meets the educational requirements and fifty percent of the clinical requirements for the Licensed Clinical Addictions Specialist (LCAS) credential administered by the NC Substance Abuse Professional Practice Board (NCSAPPB). SUAS provides a research and practice-based course of study in problematic substance use, substance addiction, and behavioral addiction, with a focus on prevention, intervention, and treatment. The curriculum is grounded in social work and incorporates a biopsychosocial-spiritual framework that is strengths-based, culturally competent, and gender sensitive across the life span. The program is designed for MSW graduate students to broaden their skills and knowledge to work with clients who have co-occurring diagnoses and/or substance use and behavioral addictions. Upon completion of the SUAS program requirements, MSW students will be eligible for their LCAS - Associate designation with NCASPPB (https://www.ncsappb.org/).

The North Carolina Leadership Education in Neurodevelopmental Disorders (LEND)

The NC Leadership Education in Neurodevelopmental Disorders (LEND) program provides interdisciplinary leadership training to undergraduate and graduate-level students. Participants receive interdisciplinary leadership training in screening, assessment, diagnosis, evidence-based treatment, and general health promotion for persons with Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD) and Developmental Disabilities (DD) and their families. Rising final-year MSW students selected for this program will receive a stipend for the academic year, as well as a proportional tuition and health insurance benefit. The program is provided through the UNC Carolina Institute for Developmental Disabilities and funded through the Health Resources and Services Administration’s (HRSA) Maternal Child Health Bureau. There is a competitive selection process and there are a limited number of training spots.
UNC PrimeCare

UNC-PrimeCare and UNC-PrimeCare-OUD are specialized training programs available to Master of Social Work (MSW) and Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner (PMHNP) students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The UNC-PrimeCare programs are an exceptional opportunity for students interested in integrated behavioral health care with rural and underserved groups, and in the treatment of opioid use and other substance use disorders. UNC-PrimeCare offers a generous $10,000 stipend and supplemental training. The goal of the project is to prepare MSWs to effectively work in integrated care settings after graduation and contribute to the behavioral health workforce. There is a competitive selection process and a limited number of training spots available to rising final-year students.

NC Child Welfare Education Collaborative

The North Carolina Child Welfare Education Collaborative seeks to strengthen public child welfare services by increasing the number and diversity of well-trained and highly committed MSWs in public Departments of Social Services. The Collaborative partners with the social work program to provide an educational process for social work students who want to seek employment in child welfare in a North Carolina County Department of Social Services.

Vera Tayeh Innovations and Impact Award

The Vera Tayeh Innovations and Impact Award provides $10,000 grants to selected Master of Social Work students, enabling awardees to create unique field placements where the student will have the opportunity to develop and implement an innovative idea and/or program with potential to improve the lives of individuals, families, and communities. Awardees will design, implement, and evaluate their innovative ideas in collaboration with the School of Social Work’s Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship Lab. There is a competitive selection process and a limited number of awards available to rising final-year students.

3-Year MSW Programs

Online Education

The UNC Chapel Hill School of Social Work does not offer an online MSW program. However, we do offer a limited number of online electives each year. Please contact our registrar, Beth Sauer bhsauer@email.unc.edu, for more information.

3-Year Programs in Chapel Hill and Winston-Salem

The 3-Year MSW Program encompasses all the courses and academic rigor of the 2-year program but allows students three years to complete the program. The program enables many students to continue working for the first two years of the program while working toward their MSW. In the 3-year program, 32 of the 60 credit hours required for the MSW degree are completed during the first two years; the final 30 credit hours are completed during the third year as a full-time student on the UNC-Chapel Hill campus. Summer courses are an option for students. First-year students in the 3-year program are expected to work in either a volunteer or paid social work position and have access to case study materials. Each 3-year program admits new students each fall semester. Visit https://ssw.unc.edu/academics/msw-degree/3-year-msw-program/ for more information.

Locations: Classes for first 32 credit hours of the 3-year programs are held at the following locations:

3-Year Chapel Hill Program - Classes are held on Fridays on the UNC-Chapel Hill campus.

3-Year Winston-Salem Program - Classes are held on Fridays at the Forsyth County Department of Social Services in Winston-Salem. Winston-Salem students pay an off-campus tuition rate for their first two years of study as generalist students; they will transition to the on-campus tuition rate for the final year of student when they take their specialization courses on the UNC Chapel Hill campus.

Year 1 Fall & Spring Semesters
➢ Two classes each Friday, both semesters (total 12 credits)

Year 2 Fall & Spring Semesters
➢ Two classes each Friday, both semesters (total 12 credits)
➢ Field placement: 16 hours per week (total 8 credits); field placements can be completed in a summer block or through your employing agency (requires special approval of the School’s Field Education Office)

Year 3 Fall & Spring Semesters
➢ Three classes on the UNC-Chapel Hill campus, both semesters (total 18 credits); classes are held Mondays and Tuesdays
➢ Field placements: 24 hours per week, Wednesday thru Friday (total 12 credits). The Year 3 field placement is in a different agency/setting than the Year 2 placement. Students can apply for a field placement in their “home” community but such placements are subject to approval by the School’s Field Education Office.

Summer courses, when available, can be taken to reduce a student’s course load in Year 3.

Financial Aid for MSW Students

Information on tuition and fees is available on the Office of the University Cashier website. Please note that all students enrolled in a program on the UNC Chapel Hill campus will pay the on-campus tuition and fees rate; Winston-Salem students pay the off-campus tuition and fees rate for their first two years of generalist study and transfer to the on-campus rate for their final-year of study.

Financial aid for MSW students primarily comes from three major sources:
1. The University Office of Scholarships and Student Aid (federal loans and UNC Campus scholarships)
2. The University Graduate School (Merit, Weiss, and Tuition Remission awards)
3. The School of Social Work (scholarships based on merit and scholarships based on need)

University Office of Scholarships and Student Aid

To be considered for loans, applicants for financial assistance must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA; see http://www.fafsa.ed.gov/). The FAFSA must be submitted on or before March 1 to meet the priority application deadline. Late applications will be accepted, but priority processing time and funds are reserved for those meeting the priority deadline. Applicants can submit the FAFSA before receiving an offer of admission. Once the FAFSA is submitted, students can contact the University Office of Scholarships and Student Aid (OSSA) with questions about eligibility for loans (see their website at http://studentaid.unc.edu/ Contact OSSA at 300 Vance Hall, CB#2300, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-2300; phone, 919-962-8396, or email to aidinfo@unc.edu.

As Weiss Fellows, students will participate several times each semester in interdisciplinary forums and activities with other fellows and will work collaboratively with other fellows in designing an urban livability project. One academic credit hour is given for participation in the Weiss Fellows program. Visit http://gradschool.unc.edu/funding/gradschool/weiss/ for more information.

Tuition Remission awards are made to out-of-state students, and typically include one year of partial tuition, student health insurance, and a stipend. Visit http://gradschool.unc.edu/funding/basics/tuitionremission.html for more information.
School of Social Work Awards

School of Social Work Awards

The School of Social Work offers various scholarships and awards to currently enrolled students as well as qualified potential applicants. To be considered for scholarships, applicants must have an offer of admission to the School and complete the appropriate SSW scholarship application. All admitted applicants will receive a link to the SSW Scholarship Application via email after they receive their acceptance letter from the UNC Graduate School.

- 20-month Advanced Standing students will be notified of scholarship decisions by early November;
- 12-month Advanced Standing students will be notified of scholarship decisions by early March;
- 2-year and 3-year students will be notified of scholarship decisions by mid-April.

SSW scholarships are made possible through gifts from alumni and friends of the School. The School awards funds based on need and/or merit and in compliance with requirements of some scholarships (e.g., county of residence, area of interest). Visit https://ssw.unc.edu/admissions/msw for information about School of Social Work scholarships.

Dean's Research Awards

The Dean's Research Awards are funded by the School of Social Work. These awards provide a stipend for one academic year. These awards are given to North Carolina residents (i.e., in-state students) and are based on merit and need. Recipients are required to work as a Research Assistant with a School of Social Work faculty member.

Paid Student Positions

The School of Social Work provides funds for a limited number of student positions, such as program assistants, graduate assistants, building monitors, and computer lab monitors. Positions typically entail 6-12 hours of work per week. Available positions and job descriptions are emailed to enrolled students late August. An email announcement is sent to all current students (including incoming students) when the positions are available.
